Kfir Tager is one of the youngest rising stars in the Israeli art scene at the enlightened age of 16.

Creating both indoor and outdoor, while using several Medias such as large canvases and murals, he takes his inspiration from comics, video games, urban landscapes and music being a few.

His bright graffiti artworks are often a look into his imagination where inspirations are decomposed and later reassembled onto the blank canvas.

Growing up, he became involved in the skate scene and was exposed to the diversity of TLV streets, which influences his own unique colorful street art blended with a pop art-infused comic style.

Nowadays, his work can be viewed in exhibitions, galleries, but mostly in the streets.

During this time Kfir prepared an amazing coloring book that encourage both kids and adults creativity and creates bonding experience.
